New Members of the Executive Committee

We continue the presentation of the new members to our readers, this time with:

Masahiro Okumiya

I got my Ph.D in March 1994, in Materials Science and Engineering (Nagoya National University, Nagoya, Japan). I work in Toyota Technological Institute from 1985. This institute was established and founded by Toyota Motor Corporation. In 1996, I visited and researched in BAM (Federal Institute for Materials Research and Testing, Berlin Germany). Now I study about surface heat treatment, especially gas carburizing, nitriding and high temperature nitriding (which we named N-Quench). I got some awards, for example ASM International, Award for Best Paper, Best paper of The Japan Institute of Metals, Best Paper of The Japan Society for Heat Treatment and Best poster presentation of IFHTSE2014 etc. I am so pleased to accept the EC membership of IFHTSE. Now I and Japan Society for Heat Treatment prepare for the 6th International Conferences on Distortion Engineering (IDE) in 2018. Please join us.
